

PRESS RELEASE - FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE - October 20, 2008

“Fourteen years and getting bigger, stronger, and more effective”... this is how the fenestration industry talks about the upcoming Win-door North America show, with over 165 exhibiting companies in North America's most focused International fenestration trade show in 2008, held at the Metro Toronto Convention Centre, November 11 -13.

Win-door North America 2008 will feature all the latest computer hardware, software, doors, doorlites, hardware, machinery, sealants, weatherseals, testing services, wood products and systems for the fenestration and door industries.

“Win-door is truly the most complete Fenestration Industry Package” states CWDMA President Eva Ryterband of Screenco. Win-door North America has become truly synonymous with being the most focused show in the North American window and door market, and truly international in content – one stop shopping for everything required from technology to machinery and products”.

Seminars For The Entire Industry – The Canadian Window and Door Manufacturers continued the tradition of presenting industry topical seminars as requested by the attendees to the show. “Knowledge and information are key ingredients to the success of any manufacturing business today” according to Richard Lipman, CWDMA Executive Director, “therefore the CWDMA, responded to requests from show visitors and exhibitors for topical seminars , along with the Fall Annual Meeting and Economic Forecast.

Visit “Safety 1” for a chance to win one of 4 sets of Taylormade Golf Clubs – prizes drawn daily with proceeds going toward the... Partners Promoting Window & Balcony Safety

Children continue to benefit from the partnership that has been formed between the Canadian Window and Door Manufacturers Association and EMS Chiefs of Canada to promote window and balcony safety for children across Canada. In a collaborative effort to prevent further tragedies, EMS services across Canada are developing and promoting educational injury prevention campaigns aimed specifically at preventing window and balcony falls.

“Window and balcony falls are preventable. The EMS Chiefs are committed to this expanding injury prevention partnership across Canada”, said Bruce Farr, Chief of Toronto EMS and President of the EMS Chiefs of Canada. “Our strong friendship and cooperation has enabled us to move forward in our efforts to eliminate falls from windows and balconies right across Canada”.

The booth will again be staffed by Paramedics. The famous “putting challenge” will be front and centre in the booth, with proceeds going toward the Window & Balcony Safety Program. The prizes have been graciously donated by SIKA, Truth Hardware and Livingston International featuring Taylormade and Adidas golf products, and Putters. Four complete sets of clubs are to be drawn for each day!
